Drugs: Use, Medicinal, Abuse – what is the difference and what difference does it make

As practitioners we need to have a basic understanding of the difference between drug use as a personal choice; for medicinal reasons and Recreational drug use that for some can become abuse to dependence/addiction.

Dwayne Cameron, Substance Addictions Professional will explain the differences that aligns with a medical model rooted in evidence and research. This will increase foundational understanding rather than relying on assumptions which often include societal stigmas and years of myths.

Once we understand the difference – Daria Strachan and Darren Stratton will discuss the approach to be taken in each case – is personal use of a legal substance disciplinable? Does medicinal cannabis have to be accommodated in the workplace and what if it is a safety sensitive workplace? Is there a duty to disclose an addiction and how does that duty apply if the individual has not yet recognized (or accepted) they have an addiction?

Finally, we are privileged to be collaborating with the CBA Pension & Benefits section again in 2018 and Susan Philpott will discuss the emerging strategies, trends and case-law to help benefit plan trustees and their advisors address the question of benefit coverage for medicinal cannabis.
